

Making Choices at Home.

Hello everyone,

Making choices is an essential aspect of learning for our children throughout their daily lives, including whilst using technology. To assist with this, we have created activities on the ChooseltMaker3 programme that can support your child, or children, at home with making some choices of their own.

The resource contains slides where your child can choose various songs, stories or games to listen to or play, all using your computer or tablet.

To access this resource at home you first need to download the Chooselt! Maker3 app from the relevant app store (iTunes, google play, etc) and then input a code, you should be able to access this resource. Further instructions can be found on the information sheet on the school web site.

The share code is ... PRELHH

If yourself or your child has any difficulties being able to access the resources above, due to any sort of visual impairment, I would like to direct you towards a YouTube resource, and a lady called Alissa DeSousa.

The videos found here are for children with visual impairments. She uses solid backgrounds which have reduced visual complexity and movements and her videos range from nursery rhymes to counting and the alphabet. The link to YouTube channel can be found below, and please access this resource even if you or your child does not have visual impairments, there are various songs to choose from.
